

A MESSAGE FROM LATOSHA FOWLKES

President and CEO of The Core Collective at Saint Vincent

In December, we announced a bold new vision and strategic direction addressing the growing need for accessible housing, healthcare, and supportive services that promote overall well-being for youth and our community.

We have spent the beginning of this year working to close the gap in available services for youth aging out of the foster care system by seeking new funding streams that enable us to provide critical services to youth and young adults up to age 26. We are in the process of transforming our 100,000 sq ft facility into a collaborative, holistic, and service-enriched hub providing meaningful and essential support to heal and house youth, their families, and the community through various partnerships.

Stay tuned via The Core Connection, our revamped newsletter, as well as our social media pages, to see us carry out our new mission to make well-being the standard for St. Louis. We improve healthcare for families, advance socioeconomic equity, and activate conscious leaders.
